Ann Tardy, JD, CPA

Ann Tardy is the Founder and President of The LifeMoxie Company (www.lifemoxie.com), a human potential company that helps organizations improve workforce synergy, individual enthusiasm and effectiveness.

Ann also founded The JEWELS Forum connecting corporate women's networks around the globe for greater impact. (JEWELS: Joining & Empowering Leaders for Women's Engagement, Leadership, and Success www.jewelsforum.com)

Prior to launching LifeMoxie, Ann was an attorney for 14 years. She practiced corporate securities law at two of Silicon Valley's largest law firms, managed the legal departments of a start-up that fell and a start-up that squeaked by to IPO, before launching her own law firm representing entrepreneurs which she ran for five years.

During her tenure as in-house counsel, Ann also served for five years as co-director of the Entrepreneurial Education program at a girls' middle school, training 12-year-olds how to start and run businesses. She then founded Girls Lead Now, a girls leadership program for teenage girls who create and execute girl empowerment conferences and leadership events. (www.girlsleadnow.org)

Ann earned an accounting degree from the University of Illinois, a law degree from Chicago-Kent College of Law, a CPA from the State of Illinois, and licenses to practice law in Illinois and California.

Ann is the author of the LifeMoxie series, a contributing author to Best of the Best and Discover Your Inner Strength, and the author of the forthcoming New Workforce by Friday.
